tional lecturer of the Farmers' Alliance organization, delivered two public lectures before the farmers in the hall of the House of Delegates yesterday. The hall was filled with farmers at the morning lecture. Several of their wives and daughters were also present, and added the morning lecture. Several of their wives and daughters were also present, and added tone to the occasion. Among the prominent Alliance promoters present were; Senator Fowlkes of Lynchburg, Coloned. John W. The impression that the Farmers Allance, like Samson, is seeking to put their arms around the pillars of our Government and destroy ourselves in order to extinguish our enemies is not correct, and is nevery particular untrue.

Mr. Terrell asserted that every act of the Government since the war was to double the wealth of the wealthy and increase the tax on the laboring people. He scoffed at the idea that the farmers should not act because it was contrary to any party.

The foot has contrary to any party.

We have been exceedingly foolish as farmers, but the day has come when we must cease to be foolish, and we are going ake steps for our interest and protection.

He advocated county Alliances. He exdained how the State Alliance is constiuted and composed.

plained now the state Athanee truted and composed.

If our National Alliance decides that we should have the free coinage of silver, why, our representatives must vote for that measure; if not we refuse to support them. This is the plan of our Alliance. JOIN THE ALLIANCE.

The speaker urged that each and every farmer should join this Alliance, and he should be a patriot, not a partisan. He should vote for the man who is a friend of the farmer, and not one who is a demagogue and an enemy to us. The Republicans in the West make a special part of the farmer, and we have succeeded for some time, until the last election, in electing our men.

"We are not fighting any party, but we are fighting the legislation that has been forced upon us for these many years. We are not lighting the railroads, for we know that if they were honestly operated they

We are going to demand that not a foot of our land shall be owned by foreigners, and only enough by corporations to carry out the object for which they are organized. Some may say this is not in the Democratic platform. Well, if it isn't, they had better put it in the organized of the people.

Mr. Terrell bitterly denounced the caucus system by political parties. Said he: "Cau-cus killed the free coinage of silver; caucus made the McKinley bill and the Lodge bill The speaker then went into the public and I will never say God bless any party, again, unless it does give us what we need. Mr. Terrell gave an amusing illustration, showing that there was no real cause for sectional feeling.

He urged the farmers to vote for a lawyer, Democrat, or anybody who would represent the farmer. He assured them that it is not the desire of the Alliance to create a new party, and no party need fear unless it is the enemy, and if so we are going to fight them to the bitter end.

You are the guard of honor; the Alliance is going to rally around the flag of liberty, truth, and honesty.

NEWSPAPERS.

The speaker grew eloquent when he re-ferred to the South, his native land. He de-nounced the newspapers of the country which had denounced the Alliance. He said that they had used every epithet con-ceivable in trying to mjure him. "Has the newspapers a right to lie on a man, and call it a news item?"

prise, they were treated to the pieasure of hearing that gifted orator, Senator John W. Daniel. No one expected the Secator, and the hall was barely half filled, and was perhaps the smallest audience the eloquent Virginia ever addressed.

Major Daniel came to the city yesterday afterneon on private business and was invited late yesterday evening to attend the Alliance meeting. He spoke only about half an hour and left the hall soon after, as he leaves the city early this morning for Lynchburg, his home. He devoted his remarks to the subject of free coinage of silver, and bandied this subject in his usual masterly manner, He clearly explained how the free coinage of silver would benefit the laborers of all classes in Virginia. "We need more money in this country," said the Senator, "than any other people on God's earth, because ours is a young country in its swaddling clothes. We are more rapidly growing and increasing than any other country. If there are bear times in our America, God did not make it so, but unwise legislation did it. I have not one speech to make to the farmers and another to the merchants and professional men, but what I say applies to all. This country ought to be a paradise of agriculture, and mineral products. Why is it that this country, which is gluttoned with rich agriculture, is laboring under a burden of debt? I think the people caught on to the lidea a few days ago when they made such a demonstration at the polls.

Senator Daniel closed a few minutes before 9 o'clock, and Mr. Terrell, the national lecturer, delivered a very sound, practical address. He agreed with Senator Daniel that the mere free coinage of silver was not all that was necessary. The circulation of more money is greatly needed.

In this day of thanksgiving Richmond's citizens, the country residents, and the people of the State have much to be thankful or. No pestilence or famine, battle, or other dire calamity has visited our fair State. On the contrary, since the last Thanksgiving Virginia has been very much blessed. Prosperity has entered through all of her gateways; capital has come to the many sections; the land has been blessed with a prosperous harvest, and Democracy and good government holds undiminished sway. It has been a glorious year, and Richmond's residents will go to their respective places of worship to-day and with bowed heads and due reverence thank the Creator for their many benefits, and with their voices raised in praise give adoration to Him who doeth all things well. many benefits, and with their voices raised in praise give adoration to Him who doeth all things well.
